our era is experiencing unparalleled and rapid transience the twentieth century began with the telephone and ended with e mail people change jobs and homes a half dozen times or more in their lives air and water pollution are threatening the well being of the earth itself wars their multiplying refugees and political crises are tearing societies apart if there is a key word for our era it might be alienation amid increasing and often chaotic complexity individuals struggle to attain an integrated stable self with durable relationships an expanding ecological consciousness reveals our estrangement from the earth societies are internally divided by clashing political and economic perspectives and processes this profound and important book recognizes and reveals the connections among these three alienations thomas finger undertakes a probing critical conversation with culture and develops his own public theology each alienation is analyzed in depth through the writings of secular authors his theological construction draws neither on modern philosophy nor worldviews but perhaps surprisingly on scripture to support his emphasis on christ finger engages the skepticism of the much celebrated jesus seminar he rejects the widespread claim that christianity's transcendent god is largely absent from the world and legitimates human exploitation of it for transcendence means that god is different but not distant from the world finger then examines the roles of jesus father and spirit in his earthly ministry in this and later scriptures these three act and interact in a salvific manner that can only be divine this means that his father and spirit also suffer with jesus in his death and with all creation as jürgen moltmann brilliantly explains and accompany him in his resurrection this also means that the creation exists in god as some feminists maintain and originated as the overflow of god's love and character into a realm which was hardly distant from god yet very different in addition this entails that every human self and the process of becoming a self as god's creations must be respected as indeed must all earthly creatures and the basic structures needed to form and maintain any society theological developments in the last decade have done much to critique misguided biblical interpretations which would justify unbridled human exploitation and abuse of creation but work in exploring how an understanding of a trinitarian transcendent god results in creative and caring relationship between humanity and creation has been less developed in discussing these matters with dr finger i am convinced that his proposed work holds the promise of meeting an important need within global theological discussions today further i know that dr finger is fully capable of accomplishing this project thus from my vantage point where i have the opportunity of hearing theological discussions on these subjects from the major christian traditions and from throughout the globe it is clear that dr finger s proposal will fill a theological void and enrich our search for truth wesley granberg michaelson executive secretary commission on church and society world council of churches 1988 1994 general secretary reformed church in america 1994 2011

Using longitudinal data from the Swiss Household Panel to zoom in on continuity and change in the life course, this open access book describes how the lives of the Swiss population have changed in terms of health, family circumstances, work, political participation, and migration over the last sixteen years. What are the different trajectories in terms of mobility, health, wealth, and family constellations? What are the drivers behind all these changes over time and in the life course, and what are the implications for inequality in society and for social policy? The Swiss Household Panel is a unique ongoing longitudinal survey that has followed a large sample of Swiss households since 1999. The data provide the rare opportunity to go beyond a snapshot of contemporary Swiss society and give insight into the processes in people's lives and in society that lie behind recent developments.

This collection of essays examines how the secular is constituted and understood and how new understandings of secularism and religion shape analytic perspectives in the social sciences, politics, and international affairs.

Unlike other books on civil society in Russia which argue that Russia's civil society is relatively weak and that democratisation in Russia went into reverse following Vladimir Putin's coming to power, this book contends that civil society in Russia is developing in a distinctive way. It shows that government and elite-led drives to encourage civil society have indeed been limited and that the impact of external promotion of civil society has also not been very successful. It demonstrates, however, that independent domestic grassroots movements are beginning to flourish despite difficulties and adverse circumstances and that this development fits well into the changing nature of contemporary Russian society.

Descartes's philosophy has had a considerable influence on the modern conception of the mind, but many think that this influence has been largely negative. The main project of the subject's point of view is to argue that discarding certain elements of the Cartesian conception would be much more difficult than critics seem to allow, since it is tied to our understanding of basic notions including the criteria for what makes someone a person or one of us the crucial feature of the cartesian view defended here is not dualism which is not adopted but internalism internalism is opposed to the widely accepted externalist thesis which states that some mental features constitutively depend on certain features of our physical and social environment in contrast this book defends the minority internalist view which holds that the mind is autonomous and though it is obviously affected by the environment this influence is merely contingent and does not delimit what is thinkable in principle defenders of the externalist view often present their theory as the most thoroughgoing criticism of the cartesian conception of the mind katalin farkas offers a defence of an uncompromising internalist cartesian conception
